Why to attend

One in eight Americans aged 65 and older have Alzheimer's disease – and another American develop Alzheimer's every 69 seconds. By 2050, someone will develop Alzheimer's every 33 seconds.

In 2010, 58% of all people with dementia lived in countries with low or middle incomes, with this proportion anticipated to rise to 63% in 2030 and 71% in 2050. This number is expected to double by 2030 and more than triple by 2050 to 115 million.
